COR files should include the following:

- A copy of the commander's nomination letter, copy of COR's letter of appointment from the contracting officer and any changes to that letter, and a copy of any termination letter.
- A copy of the contract or the appropriate part of the contract and all contract modifications.
- A copy of the applicable quality assurance surveillance plan.
- All correspondence initiated concerning performance of the contract.
- The names and position titles of individuals who serve on the contract.
- A record of inspections performed and the results of those inspections.
- Memorandums for record of minutes of any meetings and discussions with the contractor or others pertaining to the contract or contract performance.
- A copy of the surveillance schedule.
- Documentation pertaining to the COR's acceptance of performance of services, including reports and other data.

Remember: CORs should receive most of these files from their contracting officers during COR training. COR files should be considered confidential and safeguarded appropriately.

COR key duties: Monitor the contractor performance, perform inspections, verify corrected deficiencies, perform government acceptance, liaison with all parties, submit performance reports, and perform property surveillance. See the COR appointment letter for further details of COR duties.

Forms that CORs should know:

Typical contractual instruments:

- Department of Defense (DD) Form 1155, Order for Supplies or Services
- Standard Form (SF) 30, Amendment of Solicitation/Modification of Contract (common)
- SF 44, Purchase Order-Invoice-Voucher (pocket-sized)
- SF 1442, Solicitation, Offer, and Award (Construction, Alteration, or Repair)
- SF 1449, Solicitation/Contract/Order for Commercial Items (common)

Tip

See reverse side of this Graphic Training Aid (contracting flowchart) to learn how to use these forms. CORs must ensure their contracting officers explain what is required in managing these forms.

Typical receiving report instruments:

- DD Form 250, Material Inspection and Receiving Report (common)
- Invoices used as receiving reports
- SF 44
- SF 1442
- SF 1449

Typical funding instruments:

- Air Force Form 9, Request for Purchase
- Department of the Army Form 3953, Purchase Request and Commitment (common)
- DD Form 448, Military Interdepartmental Purchase Request

Tips

- CORs should use their understanding of the local culture for successful outcomes. It takes understanding, planning, and patience when working with foreign contractors in a deployed environment. When communicating, CORs should always ensure their language is clear and concise (avoid jargon). Above all, CORs should keep a professional working relationship. Take cultural factors into account, but discern between cultural differences and excuses.
- Each COR should have a designated alternate trained to fill in the gap when the primary COR is not available (due to mission, injury, or mid-tour leave).
- The COR should know all of the acquisition team members' names, phone numbers, and e-mail addresses.
- CORs are strongly encouraged to use a digital camera to document deliveries and/or services.
- CORs must understand local finance office procedures and requirements on proper invoicing.

Watch out!

- Never underestimate the dangers of being a COR. It is likely that CORs will be required to travel outside protective areas to inspect the progress of a contract. CORs must ensure they have adequate protection.
- Both commanders and CORs must understand they do not have contractual authority to issue directions or changes to any contract.
- CORs cannot delegate their COR duties.
- The pressures to meet mission requirements can be even more intense in a contingency contracting environment than in garrison. If a COR is not vigilant, these pressures can cloud his judgment as to the right way to conduct himself and represent the U.S. and the Department of Defense (DOD). CORs must educate their leadership on how to avoid unauthorized commitments.
- Corruption is the number one threat in contracting—be vigilant.

Reminders

- CORs must always remember that payment to a contractor implies work is progressing according to the contract; therefore, CORs must ensure the government gets what it pays for.
- COR records are vital for determining any actions for or against a contractor—document everything.
- The COR file is a part of the official contract file and must be maintained in accordance with the contracting officer's instructions.
- Mark the contract number clearly on all documents sent to the contracting officer.
- Section C (Statement of work) provides the meat and potatoes for understanding the contract. Section C is the COR's primary resource for managing the contractor. CORs should read this section very carefully.

Training, references, and online resources:

Trafficking in Persons (TIP) program:

- CORs must be aware of how contractors treat their employees. As a COR monitors (not investigates) the contractor and his employees, fighting human trafficking ranks among the COR's chief priorities. In deployed environments, CORs are too often unaware that trafficking occurs in the midst of hundreds of local nationals and third-country nationals working on their base camps. CORs are the first line of defense in the battle against human trafficking.
- All DOD military, civilian, and DOD contractors must receive mandatory TIP awareness training.
- Every COR must receive TIP awareness training. CORs must place their certificates of completion in their COR working files.
- The military has zero tolerance for human trafficking. CORs are to report all violations to their contracting officers immediately.

COR training:

- Army Logistics Management College (ALMC) at <http://www.almc.army.mil>; see courses and schedules under "Academic Info"; Contracting Officers Representative Course (4-day residence course).
- Defense Acquisition University offers a COR training module at <https://acc.dau.mil/cor>; Contracting Officers Representative with a Mission Focus (8-hour online course). Additional COR-related training modules are also offered. COR nominees without any previous COR experience should also enroll in Contracting for the Rest of Us (2-hour online course).

Regardless of their experience or formal training, CORs will receive on-the-spot training from their supporting contracting officers.

Online resources

Defense Acquisition University offers a COR community of practice at <https://acc.dau.mil/cor> to provide a central clearinghouse of knowledge and learning assets and share best practices and lessons learned.

Online training for contracting basics familiarization

The Sustainment Center of Excellence offers a contracting basics familiarization course at <https://scoe.learn.army.mil/webapps/portal/frameset.jsp>; see "Course Catalogs"; select "SCOE Courses"; select Contractors Accompanying the Force (CAF).
