U.S. Army Colonel “Jake” Wayman

During the course of the UID Forum in September 2010, some of the attendee’s had an opportunity to hear US Army Colonel Jake Wayman present on a few topics.

Colonel Wayman, is the Director, Integration Improvement Initiatives, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, G-8, HQDA. He holds a B.A. in religion and philosophy from California Baptist University (formerly California Baptist College), an M.S. in quality systems management from the National Graduate University, and an M.S. in strategic studies from the U.S. Army War College.

In August 2009, Colonel Wayman published “Increasing Procurement Program Transparency Through Item Unique Identification” in the Army’s Acquisition, Logistics and Technology publication.

In this article, Colonel Wayman details that senior Army and DoD leaders, Congress, and the President have requested increased transparency of procurement programs. For example, federal law and DoD directives require traceability of procurement-funded equipment, through means ranging from budget justification materials to unit-level acceptance.

The Army’s systems and processes were not designed to provide required information. Colonel Wayman’s article describes the Army’s recent actions enabling systemic traceability and transparency. These capabilities support business management innovations enabled by Item Unique Identification (IUID) and will enhance the ability to assess the quality of procurement planning, execution, and management.
