SUBJECT: Internal Controls for the Purchase Card Program

In the interest of providing stronger internal controls for the Department's purchase card program, we have determined that all Military Departments, Defense Agencies, and Department of Defense (DoD) Field Activities must accelerate fielding of on-line certification and bill payment tools at every DoD installation. The two card-issuing banks currently provide card officials access to an on-line capability to review, in real time, charge card transactions as they post to the banks' systems. This capability also allows the on-line approval and certification of invoices and the subsequent transmission of certified invoices directly to the supporting finance systems. On-line, real-time approval and certification enhances internal controls, and provides greater visibility of invoices to ensure timely certification; timely certification decreases delinquencies and prompt payment interest penalties, and increases rebates. The on-line, real-time tools also enhance supervisors' and program officials' surveillance capabilities.

At the present time, the on-line certification and bill payment interface systems are only partially implemented in the Department. Use of the banks' on-line systems is mandatory unless a waiver is approved. Each Component must take action to schedule implementation with the Program Management Office (PMO) and aggressively facilitate DoD-wide implementation by December 30, 2002. Both training resources and interfaces to supporting finance and accounting systems are drivers that must be managed by the Components to meet the desired implementation date.

Only the Director, Defense Procurement, with concurrence from the Deputy Chief Financial Officer, may grant waivers to the December 30, 2002 implementation date, or from the mandate to use the banks' on-line certification and bill payment interface systems. Waiver requests must justify any proposed alternative to the use of the card-issuing banks' systems, and shall describe how the proposed alternative is cost-effective and superior in capability. Also describe how those internal controls inherent in the banks' systems are incorporated into any proposed alternate process.

Status of DoD Component progress in implementing the on-line systems, and copies of any approved waivers, shall be provided to the PMO and Director, Defense Procurement by the first of each month with the first report due November 1, 2002. The attached waiver format is provided for your use.

Attachment
As stated

Request for Waiver
from Requirement to Use U.S. Bank or Citicorp Purchase Card
On-Line Certification And Bill-Payment Tool

This is justification to waive the requirement to:

- (1) Use the card-issuing banks' on-line tool and/or
- (2) Implement the tool prior to December 30, 2002

Rationale for the waiver:

- (A) Current method of certification and payment (i.e., paper, electronic)
 - Number of purchase card invoices paid per month
 - Average lines of accounting per invoice
 - Current cost to process Invoices

- (B) Proposed Alternate process (may be current process if waiving December 30 implementation date)
 - Cost to process invoices
 - Internal controls to ensure timely reconciliation and payment (automated card suspensions, electronic interfaces with finance and accounting systems, etc.)
 - Internal controls to be used to provide oversight (on-line review by billing officials, etc.)
 - Expected date of implementation of alternate process or bank process
