Credit Worthiness Evaluation

PL 108-87 and PL 108-136

Purpose and Description of Use

To comply with the statutory requirement to evaluate the creditworthiness of an individual prior to the issuance of a government purchase or travel charge card. Approval to conduct a credit check is part of the application process for an individually billed travel charge card. However, individual consent is required. There is currently no contractual provision for credit checks for issuance of purchase cards or centrally billed travel cards. In addition, there is no statutory authority to require a credit check be conducted without individual consent. Therefore, in order to evaluate the creditworthiness of an individual in the absence of a credit check, the attached new form, which supports a voluntary self-certification program, is proposed. Individuals who provide false information in certifying their creditworthiness would be subject to disciplinary action.
